TINLEY WILL OBSERVE 100th ANNIVERSARY

The Tinley Park Centennial celebration will present many outstanding attractions during the three day period of the festivities on October 5, 6 and 7. A constant stream of interesting and entertaining events will take place which will meet the fancy of everyone. The programs will change from day to day so that you will want to see all there is to be seen each day.

The committee has arranged to have present rides for all which will enjoy, there will be games to suit every taste with prizes you will be proud to take away with you.

Arrangements have been made to have food available for those who feel the need for sustenance. This food will be well prepared and very palatable. The variety of food will have no bounds. There will be plenty for every one. Methods of distributing food will be simple so that the customer need not wait to be served.

The old Country Store will be a main attraction with its display of articles of great worth and all dating back to the period in our history 100 years ago. The Country store will be actually located on the spot where Tinley Park's first grocery store opened, operated and did business. Some of the equipment which was used in the first store will be on hand for visitors to see.

Among the display will be the old Spinning Wheel, the cobbler's bench actually used back in the early history also you will see the old Schnitzel Bank displayed. If you wonder about the hunting weapons used in the early days of Tinley Park, those will also be on display. These are but a few of the items of interest you will be able to see at the Tinley Park Centennial.

Entertainment is being developed in keeping with the program of the centennial celebration. The old family album will be dramatically portrayed for all to see and enjoy. Music will be a feature of the entire three days. The keystone cop will entertain constantly with his antics which will keep law and order alive on the fair grounds. Working with the keystone cop will be the country judge who will deal with those who do not obey the laws. What are the laws? That remains to be seen. In fact breaking the law will no doubt be a surprise to almost everyone. However, all must be tried by the judge. His judgement will be final and... steam

Sunday, October 7 will see the biggest parade the community has ever seen. The old Ox Cart will be here the first fire apparatus, the early vehicles used to carry on business, the old surrey will be present too to add color. There will be modern vehicles and floats to help bring us back to the present day. The world famous Wilson Six Horse Hitch will be a feature attraction of the parade. The parade will form at 177th street and Oak Park Ave. and march North to 171st street then East to Memorial Park. At Memorial Park a short ceremony will be held and the Six Horse Hitch will perform by going through certain difficult maneuvers, a sight long remembered and especially colorful. The parade will be led by the American Legion, the American Legion Auxiliary, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary who will mass colors.

Everyone will have an opportunity to see the horses before the parade and to guess their weight for cash prizes. The horses will arrive in Tinley Park at 9 o'clock A. M. on Sunday morning and will be stabled behind Saenger hall. Ballots will be passed out to those wishing to enter the weight guessing contest. These ballots will be collected at the ceremony at Memorial park and prizes will be awarded later at the fair grounds.

There are still some gaps in the parade and everyone is urged to come forward with anything that will make the parade better to portray the life of Tinley Park 100 years ago.

The Tinley Park Business Men's Association is arranging the Old Country Store, the Social club is making arrangements for entertainment, and each organization of the community is helping to man the posts in order that the visitors will be made to feel welcome and well taken care of. This is a project of the community and anyone not affiliated with any organization may help if they will make their desire known to the Tinley Park Recreation Commission.

The proceeds of the celebration are to be used to help in the purchase of the plot of ground now known as Memorial Park. This move will again put Tinley Park out in front as a small community with a recreation park to be used by the people of the community for their enjoyment. When the purchase has finally been completed the park is to be dedicated to the memory of the service rendered by the men and women of Tinley Park in the Armed Services of our Country during World War II, just recently brought to a victorious close.

MOKENA WSCS TO HOLD A BAKERY SALE

The WSCS of the Mokena Methodist church will hold a Bakery sale Saturday, Sept. 22 at Cooper and Hostert garage. The sale will start at 2 pm.

How Many of these New Lenox School Students of 1896 Do You Recognize?

This picture shows a group of children from the New Lenox school in the year 1896! To the reader who sends us the most interesting letter telling us about those early days and its people, AND identifying the most children, we offer a prize of $10.00!

To give you a small hint, seen above are: the Editor, Publisher of the News-Bulletin; Charlie Francis; Mabel "Ollie" Walters and her sister Mae. There that's enough to get you started. Go see Grandma, have her thumb through the yellowed pages of the family Bible or the little explored chambers of stored up Memories. She can help you, if no one else can! Get in the swim folks, the more entrants, the more fun. Even if you're letter shouldn't win the Big prize, we will pay for each one used, plus $2.00 each for every picture of yours printed.

Tinley Park Beard Growing Contest On

The grapevine has it that there are a number of beards flourishing in and around Frankfort and Mokena and that the boast has been made that those very same beards will back the rest of the whole Tinley Park area off the map. Men let's see that beard begin to go. We know that the beards here do not need as much time to grow as they do in the afore mentioned towns. Our men are stronger and can easily develop a growth simulating a large brush without trouble. It's fun and its fun for everyone else too.

The contest you will remember is being sponsored in connection with the celebration of the Tinley Park Centennial and the judging will take place at the fair grounds Sunday October 7. You know it is quite possible that in addition to the prizes offered a barber shop may have been in Tinley Park 100 years ago and that the same may be found in the old country store display.

Here then is a chance to really grow a beard and have the old barber shave it off after the contest at the good old fashioned prices. It might even be worth raising a beard just to see what a low cost shave of yore really felt like. Of course the winner may be able to talk the barber into a free shave.

Let's keep the people having fun with this Beard growing contest and let's keep the barber busy at the centennial celebration.

SGT. ROBERT S. NEMETH OF LOCKPORT MARRIES HARVEY GIRL

Sgt. Robert S. Nemeth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Nemeth of Lockport was united in marriage Sunday afternoon Sept. 2 at 2 o'clock in the Camp Rucker, Alabama chapel, to Miss Victoria Bejgrowicz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Bejgrowicz of Harvey. Rev. Fitzpatrick performed the double ring ceremony.

ORLAND DEFEATS LOCKPORT 4-0

Due to a wet field in Lemont Orland played Lockport at Orland to win No. 13. Art Henke struck out 10 and allowed 4 hits while Orland got 7 hits off Joe Kleinknecht. Next Sunday Orland again plays Lockport on their regular schedule at Orland.

CELEBRATED BIRTHDAY IN HOSPITAL

To help her celebrate her 65th birthday, relatives and friends of Mrs. Elizabeth Klose of Mokena, who has been a patient in Silver Cross hospital for several months, gathered in her room in the hospital last Friday afternoon.

After visiting a short time, two large decorated cakes were uncovered and ice cream also which was served to the guests and nurses. Guests were Mrs. Henry Laun of Chicago, Mrs. Christ Sangmeister, and daughters Loretta and Margaret of Joliet; Mrs. Conrad Sangmeister, Mrs. Geo. Sangmeister, Mrs. Ernest Bennett all of Frankfort. Also Mrs. Elmer Benson and Mrs. Fred Knudson of Mokena.

Mrs. Klose was very happy by having such a fine party and by receiving many lovely cards.

MOKENA PTA TO MEET

The first regular meeting of the Mokena PTA will be held Tuesday, Sept. 25 at the school gym at 8 pm. Everyone is welcome.

Frankfort Lions Favor Special Election

The Frankfort Lions Club held their first meeting of their new year in their new meeting place, the Frankfort Village hall Tuesday night.

Twenty four out of 26 members of the Club were in attendance. The wives of five of the Lions prepared the meal which was sumptuous and delicious. The ladies serving were: Mrs. Geo. Sangmeister, chairman, Mrs. Raymond Hiroshige, Mrs. Henry Breidert, Mrs. A. C. Bauch and Mrs. Henry Luhring. The Lions were very well pleased with their new setup of a meeting place and meals. The following ladies have been asked to help serve at the October meeting: Mrs. Fred Heisner, Mrs. Eric Bizer, Mrs. Wm. Hanson, Mrs. Herbert Folkers and Mrs. Burton Breidert.

At the close of the dinner, Lion Program chairman Wm. Semmler introduced the new Lion District Gov. J. S. Botkin of Galesburg, Ill. who gave an interesting talk on the history of Lionism, how the Lions Club was organized, its rapid growth in membership the meaning of Lionism etc. He states that the Havana, Cuba Lions club is the largest in the world, having a membership over a thousand.

Mayor Geo. Sangmeister asked the Lions for an expression regarding a peculiar situation existing in Frankfort township. Mayor Sangmeister pointed out that the village of Frankfort is without a Justice of the Peace. He said there is only one justice in the township and he refuses to try or hear cases, serving only as auditor at town meetings. He further showed that since Frankfort has a village policeman he has a hard time finding an officer to take his cases. The Lions recommended that a special election be held in Frankfort township for the purpose of electing a Justice of the Peace in view of the fact that there is no one now serving in this capacity.

ANNUAL HARVEST FESTIVAL AT NEW LENOX SEPT. 30TH.

The annual Harvest Festival of the Grace Episcopal church in New Lenox will be held in the church Sunday Sept. 30 at 10:45 A. M. A covered dish luncheon will be served in the dining room at the camp grounds following the service.

Boy Darts In Front of Auto; Lands In Hospital

Jackie Riley, 19, Gougar Road, driving a 1939 Cadillac Sedan, hit David Stull 6 years old on the Lincoln Highway near the Duck Inn trailer camp Saturday afternoon. The boy was taken to the Silver Cross hospital by Walter Larson owner of the Duck Inn. The boy was treated by Dr. Meadows. X-rays were taken to determine the exact injuries.

Miss Riley said she was going west on Route 30 about 25 miles per hour, when she saw David and his sister Fredericka aged 8 standing alongside the road. She tooted her horn several times. She said the children saw her. David suddenly darted out in front of her car. The left fender struck him, knocking him down. Miss Riley stopped immediately.

The parents of the boy are Mr. and Mrs. D. Harry Stull. They were enroute to Stockton, Cal. from Columbus, Ohio. They were driving thru with a trailer.

ENTERTAINS HOME BUREAU

Mrs. Wm. Fair entertained the Frankfort Home Bureau at her home Monday afternoon. Mrs. Elmer Bornet presided and called the roll which was answered with "An Exchange of Perennials". Mrs. Bornet led the group in songs and Mrs. L. Kohl gave the secretary's and treasurer's reports. Mrs. Martin Smith was elected to serve as vice chairman with Mrs. Bornet and Mrs. Kohl retaining their offices for another year. Mrs. Duronda Crall, home adviser, was present and spoke on "Cartels". The minor lesson, "The Perennial Border" was read by Mrs. Smith. The program concluded with an exchange of seeds and bulbs. The next meeting will be held October 16.

TO PRESENT MOVIE AT NEW LENOX SCHOOL

The New Lenox Public school has recently purchased a new sound system for the school and its activities. This system will be given its first public use when on tonight Sept. 21 at 8 o'clock a moving picture entitled "The Courageous Mr. Penn" will be shown in the school. This is a fine picture. It is a historical film of the life of Wm. Penn.

High school pupils and students of the 7th and 8th grades and their parents are invited to see this film. A small admission will be asked, just to cover the cost of the film.

High school pupils in surrounding towns are invited. If this first showing proves good, and is well attended, more and varied movies will be shown.

HOME AFTER 2 YEARS OVERSEAS

After serving overseas two years and four months, S/Sgt. Darwin L. Mangun 30, Pine street, New Lenox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester W. Mangun, left Buckley Field, near Denver, Colo. last week to be discharged at Ft. Logan, Colo.

He entered service June 27, 1941 at Camp Grant, Ill. and is a veteran of the campaigns in Africa, Sicily, Italy, India and Burma. His main duties overseas were as an aerial gunner with the ninth, 12th, 15th and 10th air forces respectively. He returned to the United States November 22, 1944 and has been awaiting his release since then. Decorations which he holds included the ETO ribbon with six stars, Asiatic Pacific badge with one star, aerial medal, American defense ribbon and Good Conduct Medal.

Tommy Nijkowski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Nijkowski of Lincoln Estates was instantly killed while crossing Lincoln Highway Sunday evening about 6:45 o'clock.

Tommy was six years old. He is survived by his parents and one sister Carol.

The car which killed Tommy was driven by Andrew P. Brown of Lafayette, Indiana. With the latter was his son Donald. The boy's skull was fractured and he also suffered rib fractures. Dr. Raymond Hiroshige of Frankfort was summoned and pronounced the boy dead.

After the boy had been hit Pfc. Sam Jeffries carried the body into the Raymond Ott home. Mrs. Ott is the sister of Mr. Nijkowski.

Shortly after the fatal accident state police and county Coroner Kingston of Lockport were on the scene. The body was removed to the West End Funeral home in Chicago Heights.

Funeral services were held from a South Chicago funeral home Tuesday.

Mokena Homecoming Clears $1200

The Mokena Civic Association feted the workers of the recent Homecoming at Hatch hall Saturday night. Games were played and dancing was enjoyed. Refreshments were served. Announcement was made that the total proceeds of the Homecoming amounted to $5200 and that the net total cleared was $1200.

The birthday of Fred Hentsch was also remembered at this party with the group singing the happy birthday song.

60th Anniversary

The Rev. Dr. Arthur W. Nagler of Garrett Biblical Institute at Evanston will be the guest speaker at the 60th anniversary service to be held at the Green Garden Methodist church Sunday, September 23 at 10:30 a. m. Another service will be conducted at 2:00 pm. at which former pastors and visiting pastors and friends will speak. Edwin Bettenhausen is general chairman of the celebration. A special program and history of the church is being compiled by the Rev. Adam Loeppert.

PRETTY CANDLELIGHT WEDDING SOLEMNIZED

A pretty wedding was solemnized by candlelight Sunday evening at St. Peter's Evangelical and Reformed church in Frankfort uniting in marriage Miss Lorraine Deist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Deist and Glenn Warning, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Warning. The pastor, the Rev. Erich Bizer officiated at the double ring ceremony. The altar was banked with palms and baskets of mixed asters and white gladioli. A half hour organ recital was presented by Miss Lillian Collins of Chicago Heights. Miss Collins also accompanied Arthur Lambrecht who sang "Because" and "O Promise Me" before the ceremony was read.

Miss Betty Lou Oetter and Miss Charlotte Sipple, wearing pink chiffon over taffeta with corsages of white gladiolas, lighted the candles. Lohengrin's Bridal chorus was played for the entrance of the bride who was escorted to the altar by her father.

She was attractive in a gown of white bridal satin, fashioned with a train and fitted bodice with a yolk of nixon chiffon edged with seed pearls. The fingertip veil of illusion net was bordered with rose point lace and was held in place with a tiara of pearlized orange blossoms. Her pearls were a gift from the bridegroom and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Miss Betty Deist, sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid and her gown was of blue pastel nixon chiffon, also fashioned with a yolk and high neckline. She wore a matching blusher veil and her flowers were pink roses. Vivian Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Jones of Blue Island, was the flower girl. She was attired in a floor length frock of blue taffeta and wore a pink poke bonnet.

Stanley Warning served his brother as best man and ushers were Walter Schoen of Joliet and Willard Marti of Mokena. Mrs. Deist and Mrs. Warning wore black with corsages of gardenias.

More than a hundred guests from Joliet, New Lenox, Mokena, Blue Island, Tinley Park, Chicago, Momence, Hinsdale, Whiting, Ind. and Frankfort attended the reception held in the church parlors, where decorations were in blue and white. A large wedding cake was served by Miss Janet Roberts and Faye June Oetter, cousins of the bride. An aunt, Mrs. Irvin Roberts, led the silver service.

After a short wedding trip the young couple will reside with the bride's parents. Mr. Warning is engaged in farming.

FRANKFORT HAS POLICEMAN

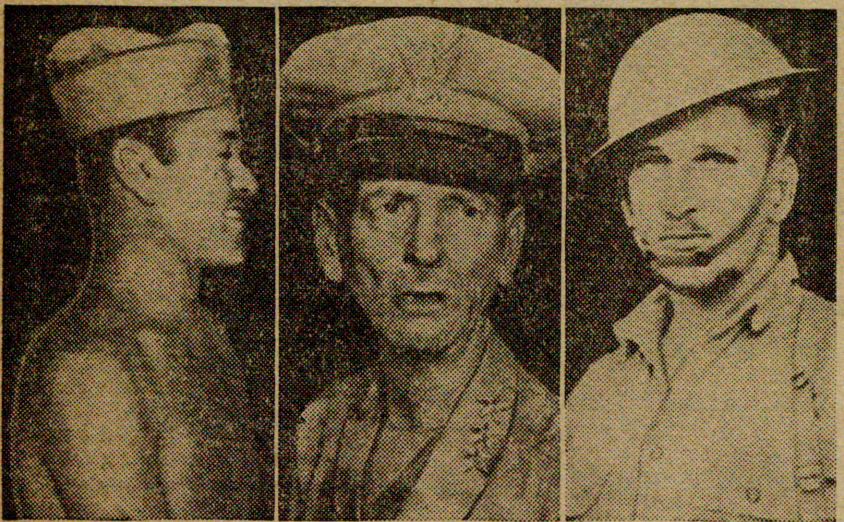

Fred Weischelberger who returned to Frankfort after residing in California a few months, has been reengaged as village policeman at Monday's meeting of the village board. He will resume his duties at once.

Six Pairs of Twins in Family

The land of the Dionne quintuplets has produced another marvel: six pairs of twins in the same family. Of these 12 twins, 7 are still living. They were part of a family of 19 children born in 23 years to farmer Olivier Brault, 42, and his wife Germaine, 39, near Montreal, Canada. The 12 living children are pictured with parents.

Boyington-Wainwright-Wermuth

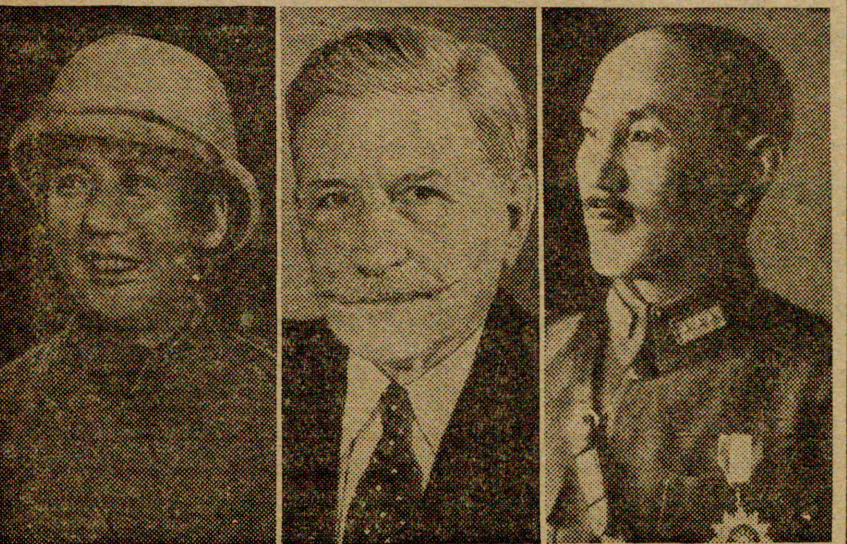

Three outstanding heroes of the war against Japan, Maj. Gregory Boyington, marine corps ace, left; Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, hero of Corregidor, center; and Capt. Arthur W. Wermuth, "one man army of Bataan," credited with killing 116 Japs singlehanded, were all found alive in prison camps, despite extreme hardships they underwent.

Pete The Pooch Is an Able Seaman

Impatience is the name for Pete, who can't wait for a line to be tossed from the chock, but dives into the sea and swims ashore, guiding the coast guard cutter to its berth at LeHavre, France. After being lifted out of the water, with the line in his mouth, he sees that it is properly moored to bollard. The wire-haired fox terrier meets all ships.

Hurley Serves as Peace Maker

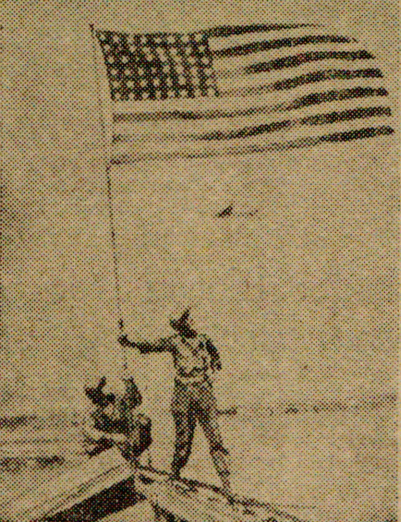

Mao Tse-tung, Communist leader of China, was escorted by Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, American ambassador to China, to a meeting with Chiang Kai-shek. The result of Hurley's efforts was a report, "Now with the victorious conclusion of the war against Japan, China is about to enter the stage of peaceful reconstruction." L. to R., Mao, Hurley, Chiang.

Regains Court Title

After three years of inaction, Sarah Palfrey Cooke came back to regain the National Amateur Women's Tennis title from defending champion, Pauline Betz, 3-6, 8-6, 6-4. The tournament held at Forest Hills, New York, was the first postwar event.

Our Flag Over Japan

Proud G.I.s of the 11th airborne watch the American flag flapping in the breeze, soon after their arrival at Atsugi airstrip from Okinawa, as planes in the background wing over the field. The raising of the flag marked complete surrender of Japs.

Champ Girl Hurler

Connie Wisniewski, of Detroit, ace hurler for the Grand Rapids Chicks of the All-American Girls Professional Ball league, broke a pitching record with 34 wins for the season, as well as for the three years the league has been in existence.

'I Did No Wrong'

"Tokyo Rose," did nothing more than entertain G.I.s, which despite her statement, and that of her relatives in Chicago, is not what she intended.

By HERBERT BAYARD SWOPE
Former Editor of the New York World and Public Relations Adviser to the Secretary of War.

NEW YORK.—The conservative defeat in England is not so striking a blow as some portray it. Unquestionably, there will be a trend toward socialization, but I think that this will be confined, at least for the next few years, to the natural monopolies—power, light, heat, transportation, communication (already in the state's hands except for cables) and of course, mining, steel, and the Bank of England. But much of this has been on their program for the last 25 years.

In fact, even the Lloyd George government gave support to the basic plan.

There will be a trend on the part of the radical movement in this country to affiliate itself with the British program. And I think there will be efforts to gain a wider and deeper association politically with Britain and Russia. But I do not discern any trend toward communism.

Whatever Britain does will be done not by dictatorship, but under the rule of a true democracy. That characteristic saves it from becoming a repetition of Stalinism. After all, only two communists were elected out of 27 who ran. That's not dangerous, even though the propagandists can—and do—claim 100 per cent increase! (The Communies had one member in the last House.)

No New Foreign Policy.

I should doubt that there will be any decisive changes in foreign policy. Britain has consistently adhered to a pretty well formulated foreign policy for almost 300 years. However, it is reasonable to expect a greater sympathy on the part of the British foreign office for the movement left of center than with the kings and Tories the expiring government supported. An approach to self-government in India is to be expected.

I think foreign trade will become more international minded and more collective. I think it will move toward further cartelization. The question about British commerce growing will be dependent upon their range of wage. Labor will drive for wider employment and higher pay. Probably it will take over many features of Beveridge's plan. To hold the British position in world markets will require subsidies. In other words, Britain will embark upon a species of protection.

Long Labor Rule

Attlee is a good man, overshadowed by his association with Churchill. My guess is that labor is in for a long run and, if there is any change it will be to displace Attlee for one of its own, such as Bevin or Morrison. As its name implies, this is a labor victory, built in a democratic framework.

Unquestionably, the fact that labor received a clear majority of all the votes, will tend to unify the country. I believe there is nothing to fear from England. In fact, we may be able to learn from this great experiment. My hope is that there will not be too great a limitation set upon free enterprise.

We should remember that Ramsay MacDonald's labor government swung steadily to the right. In fact, it is axiomatic that the ins grow conservative and the outs more radical.

That is happening in America right now. It wouldn't be surprising if the Republicans were gradually to move to the left, as against the conservatism of the southern democracy.

Universal War-Weariness

In my reading, it is almost a settled law of history that every country engaged in a war repudiates the leadership that brought its people into the war. We saw that exemplified after World War I. All the victors were repudiated—Wilson in America, Lloyd George in Britain, Orlando in Italy, Clemenceau in France. And the losers, too: the Hohenzollerns, the Hapsburgs and the Romanoffs.

Apparently a great wave of war-weariness overwhelms all peoples, and they throw out anyone remotely connected with the war. If that be true, it disposes of any question of military candidates. But there is small likelihood of that; America has chosen a great military figure really only once. That was Grant—and his presidency was a stretch.

Attlee's cabinet is a strong one and certainly as good as Churchill had.

There is an additional point, in connection with the English result, on which I should like to expatiate for just a moment:

We Won't Copy England

There is an insistent belief that the English elections are definitely an indication of how ours is going. While unquestionably, the result shows a tendency, in reality there is nothing to warrant the belief that it is any more than such a tendency.

In 1908 to 1911, Lloyd George was beginning his successful campaign for vast social reforms in Britain. We remained conservative, electing Taft in 1908, and would have elected a Republican in 1912 had it not been for the Bull Moose split.

England went liberal during the war, and thereafter, but we turned solidly to the right immediately after the war, while England, in the early '20s elected a labor government. In 1923, when MacDonald got a plurality, we put our leadership in the hands of Calvin Coolidge.

JOSEPH'S TESTIMONY TO GOD'S PROVIDENCE

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 45:1-5, 9-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!—Psalm 107:8.

God rules the universe. He has His plan which will be carried out, yes, even in spite of man if need be. "He can overrule the acts even of wicked men and make them links in a chain of providence by which His purposes are carried out."

Forgiveness, opening the way for the restoration of fellowship and the showing of kindness, brought the story of Joseph and his brethren to a happy ending. Under the good hand of God, the story which began with tragedy is brought to a conclusion of blessing.

I. Love Overcomes Fear (vv. 1-4). Following the earnest plea of Judah, the heart of Joseph could no longer withhold itself from the full expression of affection and devotion to his family.

Joseph tenderly shielded the family troubles from the eyes and ears of strangers by sending out the Egyptians. It was the first step of consideration which paved the way for reconciliation. How often just the opposite is done—airing family affairs before the world, and humiliating those who may be in the wrong, thus making it difficult for them to admit their guilt.

Then, too, this was a moment too tender and delicate to be seen by outsiders. The tears of a strong man like Joseph mean a deep movement of spirit—a solemn and often a sacred moment.

It should also be noted that the brothers were afraid, and well they might be, because of their sin against Joseph. After many years these astonished men found themselves face to face with the one whom they thought they had disposed of and they knew their sin had found them out. It always does, sooner or later, but inevitably.

II. Grace Overrules Sin (v. 5).

The guilt of these men was nonetheless real and Joseph could not remove it, but he encouraged them by showing how God had used their evil devices to work out His own good pleasure. He can make the wrath of man to praise Him (Ps. 76:10).

It is worth stressing again that in the very hour when the prospects for Joseph's future usefulness seemed ruined, God was opening the door to the greatest experiences of his life and was preparing him to serve the thousands whose lives were saved by his wisdom and ability in the years of famine.

Nothing is more important in the life of a child of God than to be yielded to His will, unmoved by circumstances, abiding His time, responding to His guidance whether it be by the opening or closing of doors, prosperity or adversity. And herein is the marvel of it all—even sin may be overruled by God's grace for His own glory.

That does not invite anyone to sin that grace may abound (Rom. 6:1, 2), but it does offer encouragement to the one who has fallen, that God can redeem the years that the locusts have eaten (Joel 2:25).

Our lesson also sets us an example of how true forgiveness acts. So often when forgiveness is asked or granted, there is an "I can forgive but I can't forget" attitude, which means that while hostilities have ceased at least temporarily, there is no real friendship or the disposition to show kindness. Is there any real forgiveness at all in such an attitude of heart and mind? We fear not.

III. Kindness Provides the Best (vv. 9-15).

It might have been enough to send food and a kind greeting with the brothers to their own land, but love does not seek the minimum expression of its feeling. It asks not how little, but how much can I give or do. Note the tender touch in verse 15, "he kissed all his brethren." Here was no general forgiveness, but a personal renewal of long-lost fellowship.

Bringing his aged father and brothers into the land of plenty was not enough, Joseph also gave to them the "best of the land" (47:11). His thoughtful consideration in sending for his father (Gen. 46:5-7) was part of the same piece of kindness.

Joseph puts to shame the modern "hard-boiled" attitude toward needy and aged members of the family. In their eager and relentless pursuit of fame or riches, many ignore or trample upon the members of their own families. Often they are ashamed of the broken bodies, the humble apparel, the broken or uneducated speech of their parents.

They fear lest their new-found friends in some circle of wealth and supposed "position" will think them strange or ridiculous. God pity the man or woman who is ashamed of a humble or aged father and mother!

Thunderhead

MARY O'HARA
W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Thunderhead, the only white horse ever foaled on Goose Bar ranch in Wyoming. He is a throwback to his great grandsire, the Albino, a wild stallion. His 14-year-old owner, Ken McLaughlin, hopes he will become a famous racer. He is entered in a race meet in Idaho. Rob McLaughlin, Ken's father, sells off most of his horses and turns to sheep raising. Ken and his brother Howard take Thunderhead and Flicka and ride into the mountains. Here Thunderhead finds the wild herd led by the Albino. In a furious battle, Thunderhead kills the older stallion, and takes control of the herd. Rob is as disappointed as Ken when he hears that their "race horse" is lost.

CHAPTER XXIV

Rob dropped a hand on his shoulder and shook it. "Now go on and get a good hot bath. Put all this out of your mind. Supper'll be ready in an hour and I want to see you eat! And I've got a surprise for you—something you'll like. I'm going to talk it over with your mother first."

Ken lay in his hot bath, luxuriating. All the sore knotted muscles eased and relaxed, and the feverish pain was drawn out of the scratches and abrasions.

He got the iodine bottle from the medicine chest and attended painstakingly to his wounds. He was dotted and smeared all over when he finally sat down with slicked hair and startlingly clean fingernails to the supper of fried chicken and mashed potatoes whipped with hot cream such as only his mother could make.

And again he told and retold the story of his adventure, even to the bit about the black mare who made the dash for freedom. "She was a beauty, dad. She reminded me of Gypsy, only she was bigger."

And at last Rob told his boy of the important thing. That none of his plans need be changed. He could still go to Saginaw Falls with Charley Sargent. He could still send a race horse of his own in Charley Sargent's express car. There would still be a Goose Bar entry in the races. The only change would be that it would be the two-year-old filly, Touch And Go, instead of the three-year-old stallion, Thunderhead.

And so when the big black Buick rolled down the mountain passes of the Wyoming-Idaho highway on October eleventh there were two racehorse-owners sitting in the front seat, Charley Sargent, quite formal looking in a black overcoat and derby hat, and Ken, feeling at least ten years older than ever before.

Thunderhead lifted his nose high and searched the wind.

It was a bare craggy peak overlooking the southern end of the valley that he had chosen for his lookout. From here he could see below him where his mares were grazing. He could turn and look at the tiers of mountains behind away up to the Thunderer in his eyrie in the sky. He could see the clouds rolling around them, he could hear the deep rumble of the giants that lived underneath, the fall of every avalanche, the crack of every frozen tree; and not a bird nor animal could move without his eyes and ears taking note of it.

It was an uneven pinnacle of rock on which he stood, with barely room for foothold. His hind legs were braced down and apart. His body was twisted. His head, with its floating white mane and spear-pointed ears, was lifted high, his dark, white-ringed eyes filled with the wildness of the mountains and the clouds. Dangling from his black halter was a bit of rope, frayed and worn at the end.

A little below him, balked by the steepness of the last sheer ascent, a small white colt stood looking up at him. Now and then Thunderhead's glance rested on him for a second, then brushed past and up again.

A new message was on the wind this early morning. There was a heavy storm coming. The temperature was twenty below already and still falling.

The mares and colts were protected by a long thick growth of hair which they had started growing in September in preparation for this early storm. But Thunderhead was warned only by the inner heat of the stallion. His coat was, as always, silky and shining, scarred only by patches of rough, long hair under his throat, and on his shoulders where he had been wounded.

Around the mountain peaks many storms were tossing, rolling down the slopes, colliding with each other, carried on opposing currents of air. A boiling mass of wind-cloud swept north over the valley with an eagle sailing before it. Now and then the storms united and came down in a deep white blanket, then were broken up again and, roaring, separated and moved in every direction. Gradually the smother thickened and snow fell, driving first one way, then the other.

Thunderhead reared his crest high into the storm. His mane streamed to the west. The eastern wind was strongest and would prevail. An easterly.

Memory tingled through him and his pawing hoof rang on the rock.

When the cold burns too deep, when there is death in the wind, take the way down the mountain. Gates are open. Mangers are full of hay. There is shelter and food and kindness for all. And the screaming whiteness cannot follow you in.

He made several abrupt movements of his head, then turned and picked his way down the crag, his tail sweeping over the white colt, who carefully followed him.

Thunderhead rounded up his mares and headed them north down the valley. When he had them running he took the lead, with the black mare and her white colt close behind him. His pace was carefully chosen so that the smallest colt could keep up.

What snow there was boiled like seafoam around their feet and there was that sound in the steady eastern wind—that unvarying roar—that would turn into a whine as the velocity increased.

They strung out single file going through the keyhole and down the river gorge. Now and then Thunderhead circled to see that there were no stragglers, giving a few nips to keep the tail-enders aware that they were on a drive and expected to keep up.

Below, on the plains, they spread out, kicking and biting, wild with the heat of their blood, and the excitement of the run, and the fierce beating of the wind and snow.

They neared the ranch in the late afternoon, Thunderhead swinging along at a canter, finding his way through the white smother with the ease of infallible instinct. He was on his own ground now, and had known every square foot of it since birth.

Reaching the crest of the Saddle Back, he halted to survey his domain and his mares crowded up around him. Nothing could be seen through the snow, but to his inner eye, every building, every fence post was visible, and as he plunged down the slope he indulged in some coltish bucks of pure joy. With those thirty handsome mares and colts behind him he could be forgiven for feeling the pride of a young heir when he brings home his bride and displays her to the family.

Down the Saddle Back they poured at a full gallop, up the county road—the gate was open! Thunderhead made the sharp turn, the mares following close, cantered down through the stable pasture to the corral—again the gates were open! They poured in—

It was already full of mares and colts. All the familiar old smells! Every brood mare as comfortable to him as mother's milk! Oats and hay. The corral and stables, Banner—

Thunderhead nickered and squealed in an ecstasy of homecoming. He plunged through the mares to the feed racks and tore out a great mouthful of hay—Castle Rock Meadow hay that he had been brought up on. His mares pushed in behind him, mixing with the other mares, starting little fights and scuffles.

Banner met him in the center of the corral. The two stallions stood nose to nose, quivering and squealing, half rearing. They were filled with the excitement that goes with the meeting of old friends—and something else, too, because of those mares and colts. They turned away from each other and began to investigate. Thunderhead's approach to the Goose Bar mares was the greeting of old friends, but it was different with Banner. These strange mares were new and exciting! There were so many of them—and his own quota was incomplete. With a mere ten brood mares any self-respecting stallion is looking for more.

The mares and colts milled around, crowding the walls of the stable and the feed racks.

Banner pursued three of Thunderhead's mares that were in a little group together. His head snaked along the ground. He drove them over to a group of his own. Thunderhead tossed his head high over the crush where he was feeding at the rack and his flaring eyes caught sight of this maneuver. He dropped his muzzle to feed again. Banner continued to move Thunderhead's mares from where they were feeding over into a corner of the corral and to freeze them there.

Thunderhead wormed himself out of the jam. He pursued Banner and neighed challengingly. As the red stallion turned and faced him, they both reared and nipped, then dropped to earth and stood quivering.

In Thunderhead was all the old love for Banner, but there was another feeling too, and it was getting stronger every instant. Anger. Combativeness. A furious uprising and outpouring of energy that lifted and stiffened his tail and burst from him in squealing grunts of protest and sent him rearing and pawing into the air. It would presently find outlet in more dangerous action than that.

The two stallions plunged past each other again and this time each aimed an ugly nip in passing.

"Boss! Boss! Thunderhead is here mid a big bunch of mares and colts!"

Thunderhead knew that voice. It went with the oats and the shelter and the kindness.

"Coom quick, Boss! Dere all mixed up wid our mares—de stallions is fightin'—"

He knew the other voice too that answered from the gorge, the deep, commanding voice with the anger in it. And he knew the two faces as they appeared through the driving flakes—the round pink face with the gray curls framing it—and the long dark face with the white teeth showing in a wind-beaten snarl. He knew the smell of them, but not this other smell of consternation—this smell of shocked horror. Nor the panic of that voice when it shouted, "Get the whips, Gus! Bring a couple of pitchforks!" Didn't know the arms that flailed him and beat him back with frenzied shouts, "Turn Banner's mares into the other corral—he'll follow them!" Even while he plunged past the man and reared again and Banner reared to face him and each aimed a smashing blow over the other's neck that landed like a dull thunder-clap, he had to take care to avoid this man who lashed his head and face with a whip, who hung, yelling, on his halter, who interfered in every possible way with his fixation, who flung his whole weight and heft against him, turning him, while the other man turned Banner. . . .

There was confusion flooding his brain . . . snow-wind blinding his eyes . . . obedience conflicting with libido. . . .

The barn. His own stall and a manger full of hay and oats. How had this happened? How had he got shut in here? He loved this stall. He dipped his head in the manger. Lifting it, he listened and pricked his ears and reached his sensitive nostrils into the air and fluttered them . . . He could smell each one of his mares and colts. They were all there, around the stable, feeding at the racks . . . everything all right . . . all safe and cared for while the blizzard whined and the wind seized the barn and rattled it like a dried pod. . . .

"Can you beat it? Thunderhead came back in the storm and brought his new harem! Habit was too strong for him."

Rob made a practice these days of hiding his temper from Nell, announcing even serious news in a careless manner.

So for a moment Nell was deceived and turned from the table where she was placing the silver for supper and looked at him with wonderment and joy.

"Thunderhead back again! Oh, Rob!"

Rob stamped across the kitchen floor to wash his hands at the sink, and it seemed to Nell that the grin he flung over his shoulder at her was more of a toothy snarl than a smile.

"Where is he now?" she asked.

"I've got him shut into the stable."

"I'd like to see him. I'll go up after supper."

"You will not!"

As he turned toward her, snatching the towel from the rack and drying his hands violently, she saw the wildness in his eyes. She said nothing more but set the supper on the table, and as Rob went to his place, he leaned over and kissed her and said contritely, "I can't let my darling be doing such reckless things as that at this late stage of the game."

Why is that reckless, thought Nell, then suddenly asked, "Where's Banner?"

The frenzied look Rob flung at her opened up to her understanding the whole scope of this predicament.

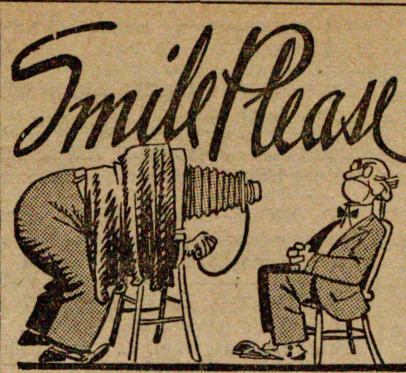

"I've got him in the east corral with his mares—and Thunderhead locked into the stable."

"Is he—is he safe there?"

"Not any too safe. You know that old stable. Horses have got out of it. Flicka beat her way through one of the windows. Thunderhead broke through the top half of the door once—hope he doesn't remember it—"

Rob was wolfing his supper.

SHRINKAGE ALLOWANCE

A stout gentleman, determined to lose weight during a stay on his Vermont farm, hustled to the general store for a pair of overalls. He picked out a pair big enough for energetic exercise. Then a thought struck him. "Wait a minute," he said to the clerk, "those fit me now, but I expect to lose a lot—maybe I had better buy a smaller pair."

The clerk shook his head, calmly went on wrapping the overalls. "Mister, if you can shrink as fast as those overalls will, you'll be doing pretty good."

Alphabet Soup

Ted—My dog just chewed my five foot shelf to pieces. What do you recommend?

Ned—Send for the Literary Digest.

Some Compliment

Joe—All that I have I owe to you. Bill—What do you have?

Joe—Nothing.

Thrown Out

Brown—How are you getting along with your fiancée's dad?

Blue—He likes me so well he's given me a brick house . . . one brick at a time.

Half-Baked

Waiter—I smell cabbage burning. Cook—Why don't you keep your head away from the oven?

GOOD OLD DAYS

Customer—What's that I smell? Clerk—Business. It's rotten.

Hear Ye! Hear Ye!

Harry—Did you say Bill had a job as a waiter in a court? I never heard of such a thing.

Jerry—All I know is he told me he served summonses.

Boiled Chicken

Cannibal—What are we having for supper tonight?

Cook—Two old maids.

Dull Pun

Joe—Did you hear the story about the baby and the horse?

Bill—No, but I'm sure it was written with mite and mane.

Wrong Music

Her—You ought to join the new movement we girls just started.

Him—Thanks, but I'm still stiff from the time I tried to dance the Samba with you.

Tough Diet

Doctor—Have you had your iron every day?

Patient—Oh, yes, I've been chewing my nails.

ON THE FARM

Visitor—Milking the cow?

Hired Hand—Naw, just feeling her pulse.

Right on Both Counts

Nit—Children are a great comfort in your old age.

Wit—Yes, and they help you reach it faster.

Thought for the Day

Nit—What do two mind readers say to each other when they meet on the street?

Wit—I don't know. What?

Nit—They say, "Hiya? You're fine. How am I?"

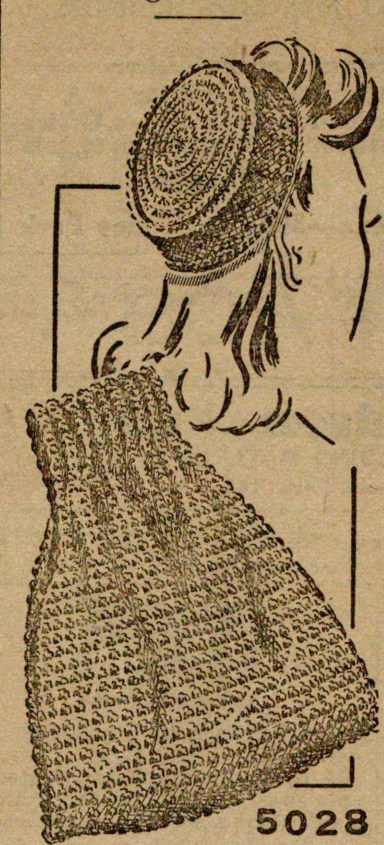

Slightly Soft

Harry—Look at the new hat. I bought you.

Jerry—How do you know it'll fit me?

Harry—I made sure. I took along a grapefruit to measure it by.

Thunderstorm Locator

No longer a war secret is a British invention, the thunderstorm locator, which proved indispensable to victory in Europe, says Collier's. Three of these instruments, installed at strategic points in England, registered simultaneously every near and far flash of lightning.

By plotting their records, it was possible to determine the location, direction and rate of travel of all thunderstorms within 1,500 miles of the British Isles and to predict when and where they would affect the Allied forces.

The Bremen Unit held its monthly meeting Monday, Sept. 17 in the home of Mrs. W. Keuch with Mrs. E. C. Grunst presiding. In the absence of Mrs. Marie Cornelius, our assistant Home Adviser Mrs. Upham presented the major topic Consumer Problems in Buying Ready to Wear. This lesson was particularly interesting to the thrifty housewife. Mrs. Upham gave pointers to be considered before making purchases. Consider occasion, material and workmanship in a garment. Also note the labels on the garments which our government is inducing the Textile Manufacturers to display regarding the quality and durability. The minor project "Lamp Shade Cleaning" also presented by Mrs. Upham. We are happy to welcome as new members Mesdames: Douglas, Anna Gallina and Frances Gallina. Our guests for the day were Mesdames Clarence Becker Reeder and Siemsen Sr. Our meetings are always open to Ladies of Bremer Township.

—Mrs. F. E. Jeffords, Pub. chair.

The meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary No. 615 was held Sept. 14 at the Village hall. Nine members were present. The Rehab chairman will make her monthly trip to Hines hospital Sept. 26 with treats for our wounded boys. Next meeting will be held Sept. 28.

On the USS Alaska in the Pacific—Emanuel Greco, S 1-c USNR, of Tinley Park can claim two "firsts" along with other members of this ship's crew. The Alaska was the first of a new class of fighting vessels, the battle cruiser, and she took part in the first raid on Tokyo, in February this year.

The 3,000 ton vessel has taken part in most of the Pacific Naval actions since that time. She is credited with shooting down a twin engine suicide plane headed for a large carrier nearby during a strike on the Ryukyus.

Her length of more than 800 feet is exceeded only by the Iowa-class battleships and the Essex-class carriers.

With the 11th Airborne Division in Tokyo—Delayed—St. Sgt. Phillip C. Fowler, 11th Airborne Division Paratrooper, was among the first American Soldiers to enter Tokyo. His wife, Waueda Fowler, resides in Tinley Park.

Sgt. Fowler entered the 11th Airborne in June of 1945 and is a member of the 188th Parachute Infantry Rgt. He participated in the Luzon campaign and wears the Pre Pearl Harbor ribbon.

He is a graduate of Morgan Park Jr. college and was employed by the Ill. Bell Telephone Co. He plans to return to his former position when discharged.

On the USS Portland off Truk, Delayed—Richard C. Heath, S 1-c USNR of Tinley Park, serving on this heavy cruiser, witnessed the surrender of by-passed Mariana and Caroline Island groups.

Vice Admiral Geo. D. Murray, USN of Washington, D. C., commander of the Marianas, accepted the capitulation of Lt. Gen. Shunaburo Magikura, commander of the 31st Imperial Japanese Army, and of Vice Admiral Chichi Hara, officer in charge of the 4th Japanese Fleet aboard the Portland. The surrender included 130,000 Japanese military and naval personnel based on Truk, Mortlock, Ponape, Kusaie, Jaluit, Wotje, Ederery, Palau, Yap, Memeon, Rota, Pagan and Wake. The Portland participated in virtually every major Pacific operation, sank two destroyers, damaged two cruisers and a battleship, helped sink two battleships and two destroyers, shot down 22 planes and helped destroy eight others.

Last year in the Fall, we had a Church Worship campaign. This year in September we will have a Home Worship campaign. A pastoral letter explaining the details and containing some inspirational leaflets will be mailed to all of our members and friends. On Sunday September 23, in a special service, copies of The Upper Room, devotional booklet will be placed in the hands of the members of the recent Confirmation Class to be delivered by them to all the homes of our constituency. On Sunday Sept. 30 in a Special service, we will place on the Altar Rail in sealed envelopes prayer lists including the pastor and family and all the names on our constituency roll. Each envelope will contain only a few names. Volunteers will be asked to come forward and take a list. While they are coming to the Altar, the congregation will sing: For You I Am Praying. Hymnal No. 237. Then for three months from Oct. 1 to Dec. 31 we desire that every home receiving the Upper Room will use it in family and in private worship and we plan that each home will be prayed for by those who take a prayer list. During this period, the pastor in making his calls, desires to pray in as many homes as possible. He will be glad to have some responsible person in the family, ask him to pray at the conclusion of the visit. By these efforts we hope to lead our people into prayer instead of talking about it or simply urging them to pray. Can we develop an honest to goodness praying church?

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 16, was:

"SUBSTANCE"

The Golden Text was:
"Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen" (Heb. 11:1).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"Now also many nations are gathered against thee . . . But they know not the thoughts of the Lord, neither understand they his counsel: for he shall gather them as the sheaves into the floor . . . I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: nothing can be put to it; nor any thing taken from it; and God doeth it, that men should fear before him. That which hath been is now; and that which is to be hath already been; and God requireth that which is past" (Mic. 4: 11, 12; Ecc. 3: 14, 15).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Substance is that which is eternal and incapable of discord and decay. Truth, Life and Love are substance, as the Scriptures use this word in Hebrews: 'The substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen,' Spirit, the synonym of Mind, Soul, or God, is the only real substance. The spiritual universe, including individual man, is a compound idea, reflecting the divine substance of Spirit" (p. 468).

Aug. 26, 1945

Dear Friends: Better late than never, they tell me, I have been meaning to write for quite some time, but am not on the Ball as far as writing is concerned. I want to thank you for the Christmas package I received, it came through alright and in good shape, everything came in handy.

Since I was home in Nov. I have travelled quite a distance. I went to California and left there in Dec. The next land I saw was Leyte and after 1 week in Casual camp there, I moved to Mindoro. I spent a month there with the outfit I am now in, from there I went to Zamboangod, from there we have been to three other places, that I'm not allowed to mention at present. We are now in garrison with the war over we won't see any more combat. "Thank God". It probably will be a year before I get home, but have a good job so don't mind too much.

Thanks again for your kind consideration.

As ever, your friend,

Jack Schussler.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Bayer and family entertained the latter's aunt and uncle Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mooth of Lansing, Ill. Sunday afternoon.

Dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sayers last Sunday were: Mrs. Mary Vanhooser of Ontario, Canada and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sayers.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Colangelo visited relatives in Chicago Sunday.

The three sisters Lena Yeager, Jackie Walsh and Wilda Citero spent an enjoyable evening in Chicago with friends last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Colangelo have received a letter from their son S2-c John Colangelo stating that he has been on convoy duty between England and Pearl Harbor recently and that he soon expects to visit Japan. He does not know as yet whether he may remain as part of the occupation forces. He also sent some interesting post card folders from San Diego, Cal. where he is now temporarily in port.

Well, we thought we had the wanderlust all worn out of Gramp Doctor, but here we go again. All day Friday he could smell ripe plums and fried chicken so Saturday morning away he goes, this time to LaFayette, Ind. where he visited his nephew also a Chas. Doctor. But he took good care to stay with his nephew's daughter Meredith Greenwood, a grand niece of Gramps, and also a great grand nephew, Chas. Greenwood and his daddy Ernel. He got the plums alright, but for Sunday dinner he had the fried chicken. A picture was taken of four generations and another of the 12 relatives present. At a quarter to three Sunday afternoon Gramp started for home. He arrived at 6:30 p.m. and here he is now. Don't pay too much attention to him tho, for he is a privileged character, and he goes and he comes where, and whenever that old itch starts to bother him.

The Einar Johnson family suffered a misfortune when Mrs. Johnson slipped and fell from a chair while cleaning around her windows and suffered a fracture of the right leg just below the knee. Fortunately the break did not separate and cause further damage but nevertheless Mrs. Johnson will be confined for about 6 weeks while the break mends. A cast was placed on her leg Tuesday and it is hoped that soon she will be able to get around some with the aid of crutches. She is being cared for by Mrs. Robt. Roth and is staying at the Roth home during her convalescence.

Mr. Max Goepfner is enjoying his vacation at home this week.

Probably the most outstanding event of the week and one which surely filled the hearts of the entire Putz family with gratitude, all began Sunday morning when Sgt. Leo Putz calmly walked into his parents home, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Putz, and announced that he was once more a civilian, and was home for good. The happiness of having him home for good is being shared by his wife Mrs. Lillian Putz, his parents, his sisters Mrs. Thos. Fordonski, Mrs. Nick Jungles and Mrs. Wm. Jungles while we, his many neighbors and friends, together extend him a hearty welcome back into our midst. Home on furlough at the time, and present to welcome Leo was S/Sgt. Tommy Fordonski, who will return to duty at Camp Crowder, Mo. next week. Leo has spent the past 3½ years in active service in Africa and Italy and has lived thru many experiences. He flew from Italy to Miami, Fla. in 51 hours, was shipped to Ft. Shridan and mustered out of service almost immediately. He states that he has no particular plans at the moment but is going to enjoy a well earned rest. To emphasize that he and his wife Lillian and Sgt. Fordonski and wife Gladys are leaving Thursday night for a week of fishing in Wisconsin.

Mrs. Wm. Bettenhausen and Miss Jo Ann Lahti with several other friends of Tinley Park enjoyed Sunday at Fort Sheridan visiting friends.

Mrs. James Jensen of Oak Park was a dinner guest Tuesday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sayers.

Mrs. Earl Sayers is in receipt of a letter from her son P. O. Wm. Mutsch in which he says hello to everyone and says that he does not know when he will be out but expects it to be by Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Bayer were Saturday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Young and family in Maywood.

Mrs. Ellen Johnson and daughter Alva visited with Mrs. Einar Johnson at the Roth home Saturday evening.

Mrs. Clascina Bonezek received a letter from her brother S2-c Gene Bower, who states that he is now in Tokyo Bay, but expects to leave for the States in a couple of days and wants his Mom to have a nice soft bed ready for him.

Luncheon guests at the Frank Colangelo home Monday were Cpl. Tom Teti of Philadelphia, Mrs. Rose Clementi, Mrs. John Colangelo, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Di Cola and son and Mrs. Jennie Bertucci all of Chicago. Mrs. Colangelo accompanied them to Chicago where she later met her husband and spent the balance of the evening with Frank's relatives.

Mrs. Lillian Wixson called at the Roth home to visit Mrs. Einar Johnson Monday evening.

Mrs. Ellen Johnson and daughter Alva and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Kaszmarek and baby visited Mrs. Clara Johnson and baby Corinne in Oak Lawn Sunday.

Mrs. Clara Johnson is building a home in Clearing and later took her guests there for an inspection of the new home. A pot luck dinner in which Potato salad from New Lenox and fried chicken from Wooded Estates were the high spots, was thoroughly enjoyed Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Roth and family. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Anderson and children. An added attraction during the afternoon was a demonstration of the new Bendix home laundry at the home of Clarence Beagley.

The Capone family of Chicago enjoyed the weekend at their home here.

Mrs. Wm. Winke and son Gene spent the weekend at their home in Wooded Estates. Mr. Winke joined his family here Saturday evening.

RUBE TARTChicago and Northern Illinois*Transportation Facilities—*Unsurpassed in all the World

Like spokes of a wheel... rail, air, truck and shipping lanes fan out from Chicago and Northern Illinois to all parts of America. To the manufacturer located in this area, these facilities mean quick receipt of raw materials... speedy delivery of finished products, to markets all over the world. There is a wide choice of available plant sites with ready access to all transportation.

By rail—22 trunk line and 17 belt and terminal railroads serve Chicago and Northern Illinois. 7,726 miles of railroad track converge in the Chicago industrial area alone. This is greater than the main line mileage in 39 of the 48 states.

By air—For any operation where the element of speed in transit is essential, Chicago and Northern Illinois is the ideal place in which to locate postwar plants. Nine principal airlines connect this territory with every major city on the North American continent. Geographical features which have made this area the crossroads of commerce, are now making it a great international airport.

By truck—Over 600 truck and bus lines offering 24-hour-a-day service speed parts, products and people from Chicago and Northern Illinois to 24,000 United States communities. More than 600 miles of new superhighways, now projected, will help speed delivery to every corner of the nation.

By water—10,000 miles of inland waterways serve Chicago and Northern Illinois. Trans-Atlantic vessels can come direct to Lake Michigan ports via the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes. The Illinois deep waterway provides a direct link with the Gulf of Mexico. In 1940, a record 43,500,000 tons of lake and Illinois waterway traffic totaled more than the traffic passing through the Panama Canal.

To industry and business seeking locations, transportation is only one of the many advantages offered by the Chicago and Northern Illinois territory. As an aid to business, agriculture and industry, we have established a department to assemble and distribute factual data concerning this area. You are invited to make use of the services of this department. Communicate with the Territorial Information Department, Marquette Bldg., 140 S. Dearborn St., Chicago 3, Ill.—phone RANDolph 1617, or our local office.

Industries locating in this area have these outstanding advantages

Railroad Center of the United States • World Airport • Inland Waterways • Geographical Center of U. S. Population • Great Financial Center • The "Great Central Market" • Food Producing and Processing Center • Leader in Iron and Steel Manufacturing • Good Labor Relations Record • 2,500,000 Kilowatts of Power • Tremendous Coal Reserves • Abundant Gas and Oil • Good Government • Good Living

Take Notice: The cost on each tract, or parcel of land in addition to the foregoing amount is 26 cents and on each City or Town lot, or block, 16 cents at this date.

All delinquent taxes for the levy year of 1944 draw interest at the rate of one per cent per month, or fractional part thereof for delinquency, the first installment being delinquent the first of June 1945, and the second installment being delinquent on the first day of September, 1945.

I. Ivan R. Rhodes, County Treasurer, and ex-officio County Collector of Will County, in the State of Illinois, give notice that I will apply to the County Court of said Will County at the October Term thereof, to be held at the Court House in the City of Joliet in said County, on the first Monday in October, A. D. 1945, same being the first day of said month, for judgment against the said Lands, Town and City
Lots and Blocks, described in the foregoing lists for the general and special taxes, interest and costs severally due thereon, and for judgment fixing the amount of tax paid under Protest, and that I will then and there apply for an order to sell all lands, Town and City lots and Blocks, for the satisfaction of said general and special taxes, interest and costs, and I also give notice that on the second Monday in October, A. D.

1945, the same being the eighth day of said month, all Lands, Town and City
Lots and Blocks, on which an order shall be made, will be exposed at Public Sale at the Court House aforesaid, in said County and State, for the amount of general and special taxes, interest and costs due thereon.

Said Tax Sale will commence at the hour of 9 o'clock A. M., on said Monday, the eighth day of October, A. D., 1945 and will continue from day to day until all the Land, Town and City Lots and Blocks upon which the general and special taxes, interest, and costs, remain due and unpaid at that time, are sold.

IVAN R. RHODES,
County Treasurer and ex-officio
County Collector of Will County, Illinois.

FRANKFORT

By Mrs. Ada Lambrecht

CARD OF THANKS

We extend our heartfelt thanks to all relatives, neighbors and friends for the kindness and sympathy shown us in the illness and death of our beloved wife and mother. We also thank Rev. E. Bizer for his comforting words and Mrs. Bizer and Arthur Lambrecht for their music, and all who donated the use of their cars, and for the beautiful floral offerings and spiritual bouquets.

EMIL LENHARDT AND FAMILY

Mrs. Earl Bettenhausen entertained the WSCS of the Methodist church at her home Wednesday afternoon. Devotions were led by Miss Emma Andres. "Health Around the World" was the title of the study given by Mrs. Elmer Bettenhausen. The October meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Edwin Bettenhausen.

The first of a series of Card and Bunc-o parties sponsored by the Frankfort PTA will be held in the school auditorium Friday, September 21 at 8 pm. The public is urged to support this new organization.

Rev. and Mrs. Robert Klepper of Prospect Heights are the parents of a daughter born Saturday, September 15 at the Passavant hospital, Chicago. Rev. Klepper is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Klepper.

The Happy Hustlers 4H club held an achievement day program at the home of Eleanor and Jean Keuch at which their mothers were guests. After the opening song Phyllis Koenig and Doris Hinspeter gave a demonstration of dairy foods; Carla Haugh gave a talk on clothing; Faye June Oetter sang "Roses of Picardy"; Eleanor Keuch and Wilma Mark gave a demonstration on a flower arrangement; Eleanor Keuch sang "The Lord's Prayer". A style revue followed a group of piano selections by Wilma Mark and Betty Mae Kratzberg led a skit in which the audience participated. A two course luncheon was served. This was the final meeting of the season. A new program will be planned for next spring.

In a recent letter to his mother, Mrs. Alvina Cheney, T. S. Walter Cheney writes: "I had some pretty good news this week. I'm leaving this company and will join an outfit that is coming home. I think it will be sometime in October. Don't write any more letters till you hear from me and don't send any Christmas packages. I have a box to send home tomorrow. I had a good time at the dance and most of the girls are good dancers. They dance a little different but it doesn't take them long to catch on. Glad you are still feeling good."

Cheney sailed from the U. S. in September 1943 and landed in England where he remained until June 1944. He landed in France two weeks after D-Day and saw his first action there on June 29. Crossing the Seine river in August 1944 he landed in Belgium early in September. In two weeks he went to Germany, back to Belgium in December and then again to Germany in February 1945. He crossed the Roer River three weeks later and the Rhine on March 23. It was in this area, he mentioned that Gen. Rose was killed. On April 14 he took part in the battle of Aachen where 60 men handled the town. VE day was spent in Oesdorf. From there through many towns to Frankfort Germany and then back to Frankfort, Ill., he hopes. Cheney says Aken was the last action he saw. He is with the 23rd Armd. Engineers.

Off the Runway

Civil Air Patrol, Squadron 613-3
by 2nd Lt. Erlyne Conel

The Altitude Cure! Hay fever sufferers may get high ideas from this. Civil Air Patrol's Lt. "Shorty" Vance LeBelle—now an instructor and Jr. Flight Inspector at Washington Park airport, was once hired by a man to fly him for three hour sessions. The man would get hay fever relief and much needed sleep in the cockpit as they cruised above the Pollen!

From Lisbon, Portugal comes this interesting news: A successful remedy for whooping cough has been reported. It's three forty five minute flights at 9,000 feet above the ground, under care of a doctor. The Portuguese Department of Civil Aviation in collaboration with a newspaper is making possible free flight treatments for children.

Paging Brown and Jones! A former member of Harvey's Squadron 613-3 was warmly greeted at the Civil Air Patrol meeting last Thursday night. We all rejoiced to see Staff Sgt. John F. Smith of the Army Air Forces. A lot happened to him between his departure and return to the Squadron. Sgt. Smith spent a year and a half overseas, nineteen months in a German Prison camp. He was a radio operator on a B24 Bomber, operating out of England, and wears the Purple Heart.

And at Rubinkam Airport last Saturday afternoon, Warrant Officer Elaine Smith of CAP introduced us to her husband, Capt. Robert Smith, an Army doctor just returned from overseas. Capt. Smith was on his way to the Pacific when news of Japanese surrender reached the boat he was on. It about faced, and headed home, Fast! The Smiths looked very "Roger" together!

Horses with! Wings! Four horses are now "riding the range" at Rubinkam Airport. Now, everything from 330 horsepower to one-horsepower is on hand in the way of transportation.

It all started when Bernice asked her husband WO Bill Jacobs, manager of the Airport, to "give her a horse she could ride." Bill, never one to do things half way, went "whole horse" on the idea. And came back from an auction with a quartet!

Result. After flying planes and kicking the controls around a bit in the sky, you can do some land flying, by taking off in a saddle about 15 hands off the ground. Four of us had a lot of fun riding last week. WO Cy Knuteson had her first ride, and it almost threw her for a round loop. Suggestion: Why not call the horses "Pegasus" they all surely live UP to that name!

Saga of Private flying: 2nd Lt. "Doc" Stevenson of Civil Air Patrol recently returned from a flight West. He has just about covered all points on the continent of North America, including his miraculous flight to Alaska last year.

Step Upward for South Chicagoland. Chicago's impatience for better air facilities, is getting the experts busy. A current plan has Douglas Airport on the North side as Chicago's future No. 1 airport, and is considering Ford-Lansing or Rubinkam Airport as a secondary Chicago Air Terminal.

This is a family war. Put your War Bond buying through the payroll savings plan on a family plan, which means figure it out yourself.

Youth Conference Revealed Duty Of Parents and Youths

The Youth Conservation Conference sponsored by the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs held last Tuesday in the Hotel Sherman in Chicago, proved to be a most interesting and ably handled affair. Mrs. Walter Eichelberg, President of the Tinley Park Woman's club, Mrs. Hugo Neithammer and Mrs. Wm. Semmler were among the 325 present at this conference.

Each speaker was one of prominence and knew from experience whereof they were speaking. Judge Anna M. Kross of New York City told of the fine work in youth delinquency they are doing in her state.

Judge Frank H. Bick of the Juvenile Court of Chicago, who handles many cases a year of youths in Chicago, said this was a tragic time for young people that the major responsibility for youth delinquency rests with the homes; that conserving of America's most valuable asset, our youth, first and foremost is a woman's problem; that this message must be brought to every last woman in the country, that the United Nations can not succeed if it does not succeed in our back yards. Judge Bick forcefully stated that: where children have gone wrong, it shows that fathers and mothers have failed, with a few exceptions. He also said, our schools must be made to meet this problem with good teachers adequately paid, that criminal problems of youth is one of home, church and schools.

Mrs. Helen C. Griffin, Supt. of State Division of Rehabilitation of Women, said: "How I wish I could make fathers and mothers over, make homes over, then there would be but few delinquencies." Mrs. Griffin, who personally handles and supervises girls in reform institutions, stated that when the girls are released from these places of reform, they do not want to go back to their homes.

She decried the present method, of letting children do as they please, and said that parents must face this issue and assume their responsibility of parenthood to train and teach their children, that each child should have some religious training. It was brought out that many delinquencies do not come from the slum areas, but from the better homes. When parents present an understanding heart, with youth, see that education is given, good dress, not scantily dressed, then we would not have "trouble with our girls in the taverns" said Mrs. Griffin.

Among the 32 youth groups represented at the conference were: Girl and Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, 4H clubs, Trail Rangers of America, Salvation Army, Boys Brotherhood Republic, the latter represented by Mr. Robins. It was new to us, to learn of his work with youth, that of taking boys who no one else wanted, when they were released from a reform institution, and helping them to go right, to encourage them and help them to get work. A motto on the walls in their rooms in Chicago for the past 20 years has been: "There is no such thing as a bad boy" and that motto was adopted by Father Flannigan when he started Boys Town.

But the speaker who stole the show, was a young man, a high school boy Wm. Ehler, who spoke with great sincerity and enthusiasm. He represented Chicago Youth Council, an organization three years old, contacting 150 high schools. He said their object is to arouse public opinion, this they do by just asking questions, of judges, teachers, preachers etc. to quote him at one time when he said: "We want to know why taverns are permitted to sell to minors and why parents who are responsible for youth delinquencies, are not penalized?"

It was refreshing to see and hear such a fine young man speak so fearlessly to an adult group.

The theme of the evening session was "Pattern For The Future," Mrs. Harry Raymond gave a complete resume of the bill before the state legislature concerning youth. The most important one was the four-point adoption law.

She reminded us that minors are not responsible to law and that it is the duty of parents or guardians to see the latter abide by the law and educate our children to understand and respect them.

The next speaker, Dr. Howard McClusky likened youth to the sensitive growing edge of culture. He said the old stability is slipping, that youth will change. The future belongs to young people, the recreation picture is, and must continue to change.

The speaker told that 30 percent of the war casualties were among youths under 22; the veterans groups will unquestionably be the strongest group in the country; the Teen-agers must grow up against terrific competition in this post-war world; society is not prepared for the flood of labor on the market; young men and women should be encouraged to return to school.

What can be done about?

There is no limit to what each community can do. The sound thing to do is to work thru agencies and various groups. Study the young people, their problems and resources available to help them. Encourage youth to take an active part in community life; organize a State Youth Commission; contact those who are in charge of Youth Delinquents at the very beginning of the trouble, namely: parents and teachers. When this problem is nipped in the bud it will not reach the stage of going into courts.

Make Youth realize that they are "the citizens of tomorrow", that you have faith in them.

In way of summarizing, it seems to us, the underlying principle of life which was not touched upon, save by the Salvation Army representative, in a vague way, is the only sure step to solve this problem, which really is not a new problem. That principle, we think, is the simple sane, truths of the "Sermon on the Mount" given by a Great Wise Man, the humble Nazarene thousands of years ago, and which has stood the test thru all the ages.

IN MEMORIAM

KOHL—Daniel B. In loving memory of our husband and father, who passed away two years ago, Sept. 25, 1943.

We mourn for him in silence,
No eye can see us weep,
But many a silent tear is shed
When others are asleep.

WIFE, SONS AND DAUGHTERS.

Mr. A. P. Belanger of Hamilton St., Mokena, leaves Sunday of Boston, Mass., where he will supervise the erecting of a leather drying machine. This machine is a product of the Special Equipment Co., of Park Ridge, Ill. Mr. Belanger formerly specialized in this work.

Mrs. Amanada Gans of Champaign, Ill., is spending this week with her daughter, Mrs. Milton Geuther and family.

Among the U. S. Coast Guardsmen discharged under the Navy point system from the Coast Guard Separation Center No. 9, at St. Louis, is David H. McMillan, MM2-c, of Mokena.

Word comes from Mattoon, Ill., that Mr. and Mrs. Gerald W. Dunn and daughter Mary Ann have moved to that city, where Mr. Dunn is teaching biological science in the high school.

We were relieved by the British who were shelled incessantly. We were unwilling witnesses several times when the Germans T. U. 88s, bombed our forward Field Artillery and Infantry positions near the Amo.

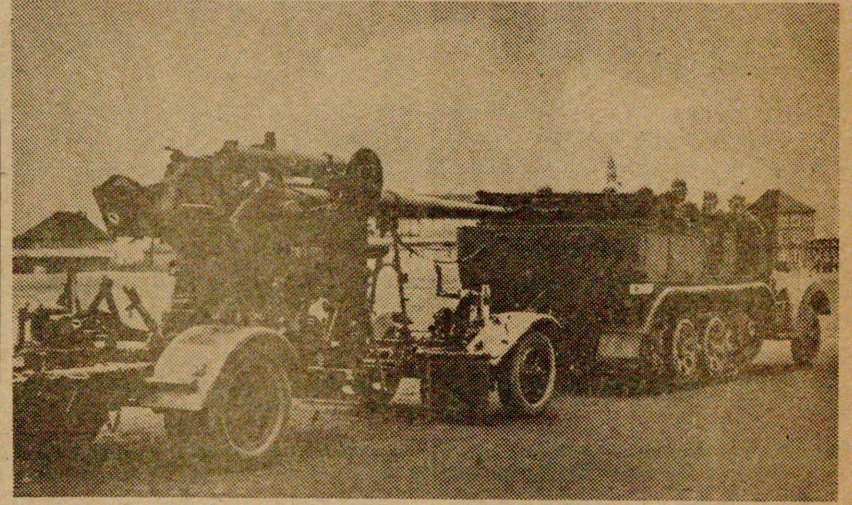

From my battery's position near San Giorgio, we watched the bombing of Monte-Cassino monastery. San Giorgio is pretty well torn up. In Africa we acted as Anti-Aircraft. In Italy we acted as Anti-Aircraft and Field Artillery. Anti-Air at day time and Field Art., at night. "It can't be done", We done it! We fought with the French 1st army in Italy and the 5th army from Naples to Florence. We have six battle stars.

We entered France at Marseilles and followed the Rhine river a way and then on to Strassbourg and St. Vold, then entered Germany at Kaiserlautern as 7th army M. Ps. Then to Mannheim and then as Prison guards in Ludwigsburg for the S. S.

The M. Ps., in charge of the HALL are strictly G.I.s. and friction exists between our M.P. outfit and theirs. It seems to us a lot a gasoline is being wasted trying to catch some of our boys out walking after 9:30 curfew or as they say, "improperly dressed." One instance in particular, a jeep of theirs stopped in front of a bunch of our boys sitting on a small ledge by the river. My helmet was lying on the ledge beside me. The officer in the jeep informed me to wear my helmet at all times, in no uncertain terms. That jeep circled that block five times, to see that I followed orders. If that don't help to create the gas rationing back home, then what does?

Sincerely, Ray.

YOUR correspondent is not among those who see only greatness in the past history of sport. All games advance when greater numbers of players take part and improved methods are utilized in training and competition.

But when we read and hear that the new golden age of sport, due to follow in the postwar boom, will far surpass the golden age that came after World War I, an immediate disagreement is hereby entered. This doesn't concern the greater crowds that will undoubtedly pay out more cash in sport's coming boom, but it does concern the quality of the talent the next few years will bring along.

Suppose we look over a few names that featured our headlines some twenty or twenty-five years ago—

Baseball—Babe Ruth, Rogers Hornsby.

The Ring—Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney.

Golf—Bobby Jones, Gene Sarazen. (Hagen got an earlier start, but he was still a big part of the show.)

Polo—Tommy Hitchcock.

Racing—Man o' War.

Football—Knute Rockne—Red Grange—the Four Horsemen.

Tennis—Bill Tilden, Little Bill Johnston.

What chance has the next decade to surpass this list in skill, color and crowd appeal? It might happen, of course, but the odds are the other way. Such present day stars as Joe Louis, Billy Conn and Byron Nelson were at or around the top some time before World War II started, and so can hardly be classed as members of the new "golden age" group who are supposed to outclass the names we have mentioned.

WHO CAN EQUAL THESE?

Will any ball players come along to pass Babe Ruth's home run record to pack ball parks that had, in many places, been drawing from 800 to 1200 spectators? Will any ball player come along to average above .400 for four consecutive years, as Hornsby did?

Will any golfer come along to equal Bobby Jones' grand slam, or hold the high average Gene Sarazen has carried for twenty-four seasons?

Will a better polo player than Tommy Hitchcock report, or a greater tennis player than Bill Tilden?

Or what new heavyweight will take over the show who has the ring appeal that Jack Dempsey knew in his seven-year reign?

All in all, that bunch of old-timers will be hard to outclass as we look at the picture.

The new golden age will first have to depend largely upon stars established before Germany and Japan decided to split the world like an apple and not even leave a core.

This would have to include such well-known names as Joe Louis, Byron Nelson, Ted Williams, Bob Feller and a few others. After this we get a long list from baseball and football stars on the pro side who were called by Army and Navy when they were barely starting their invasions of fame's kingdom.

STARS AMONG VETERANS

In spite of valuable years they have lost on the field, many of these will return and scrap their way into coming headlines. But the majority of the new stars will have to come from the millions of kids now under eighteen, plus the roll-call from some 11,000,000 servicemen who have been taught many games they never had the chance to know before at close range.

There is no doubting the fact that the general average of skill will soon be well above the average we knew twenty years ago. And that is what counts heavily. There will be new records—especially in distance races as we go out after the flying Swedes.

We will have a far greater number of participants, also deeply important, in every sport. And these will all play to record-breaking crowds, as Belmont showed the way last week with its 57,000 human sardines hurling well over $4,000,000 into the mutual's maws.

There will be a far greater mass of competitors to call upon. But that first golden age is still something to outclass—Ruth, Dempsey, Jones, Tilden, Man o' War, Grange, Hitchcock and the others mentioned. For in addition to their skill and power they also had incredible flares of color and crowd appeal. In the main, their names were known around the world.

In addition to Louis and Nelson, Williams and Feller, the new golden age should lay claim to the Army and Navy football teams of 1945. The two great squads directed by Red Blaik and Swede Hagberg have the chance to be rated among the best any colleges have ever known—including Notre Dame, Minnesota, Michigan and Southern California.

Unfortunately, they haven't the competition known before the war, but this isn't their fault. Whatever happens, the next few years in sport will be something to watch and follow, possibly the most interesting decade that any crowds have ever known.

We have often heard various flights of oratory about the best ball player or the most valuable ball player through the war era. Many names have been mentioned, including those who were not called to war service, for various and official reasons which in no sense reflect upon the ball player.

But when you complete your excavations and get down to what is technically known as rock bottom, there is only one answer. His name is Hal Newhouse, the willowy left-hander of Detroit's Tigers, who won 29 ball games last season and has already packed away 20 victories in this waning August campaign. This means a total of 49 winning starts in the last two seasons, with several weeks left. Dean won 58 games in 1934 and 1935—Hubbell 49 in 1935 and 1936. Newhouse is sure to pass the 50 winning game mark for two seasons, meaning 1944 and 1945, and this pleasant fate doesn't happen to many pitchers.

Increased Profits and Yields by Rotation

Erosion Controlled by Proper Farm Planning

The growing of intertilled crops such as corn and soybeans not only uses plant food faster, but the loss from erosion is greater too, on rolling land, according to careful checks made at Iowa State college.

To overcome this condition rotation is important. The first requirement of a good crop rotation is that it contains plenty of legumes. Sod crops of legume-grass combination produce much feed per acre, and in addition, they:

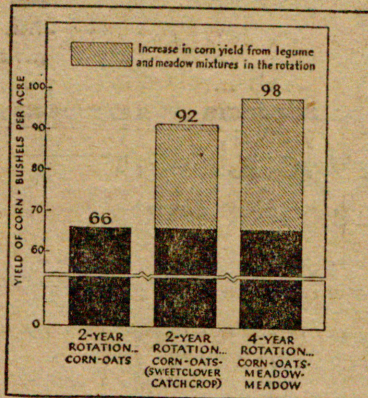

Increase the yields of other crops in the rotation.

Help maintain soil fertility, particularly the nitrogen and organic matter.

Produce good soil tilth.

Help control erosion.

Where corn was grown in a four-year rotation of corn, oats, followed by clover and timothy for two years, the yield of corn was 32 bushels higher than when grown in a corn-oats rotation. In poor crop years, the difference in yield may be smaller than those obtained in the good crop years of 1942 to 1944. However, the difference between the poor and good rotations will probably become greater the longer the treatments are continued.

One of the most important reasons why crop yields decrease when land is kept in grain crops such as corn and oats is that these crops lower the nitrogen and organic matter content of soils.

Calf Parentage Proven

By Blood Test Method

Paternity of quadruplet calves born to Adam and Eva Arcady, pure bred Hereford cow and bull owned by C. D. Lucas of Dyer, Ky., was scientifically "entered" into animal husbandry history books following the blood test made by the University of Wisconsin.

Dr. I. Hendrick, veterinarian of Owensboro, Ky., who is the "Dr. Daffoe" of the quad calves, stated that he could find no record of the birth of four healthy, normal calves at one time by a single cow. Quadruplets have been borne by cows but have only survived a few hours or days, Dr. Hendrick says.

Supplement to Urea

Urea, the nitrogen compound, known as a "protein" substitute for cud-chewing animals, works well for growing heifers in a ration made up of roughage, molasses, urea and a small amount of either protein or starch.

Molasses, urea and low-protein roughage does not constitute a good ration alone but should be supplemented by some such protein as casein. The molasses does not stay in the animal's rumen long enough for micro-organisms to convert efficiently the molasses and urea into protein. It is for this reason that some other form of protein must be added.

Food-and-Mouth Fear

A warning to livestock owners to be on the alert against the possible appearance of foot-and-mouth disease has been issued by the American Veterinary Medical association. It is believed that the disease may become a "fellow traveler" to the hundreds of thousands of soldiers returning from overseas areas where foot-and-mouth disease is widespread among livestock. The disease has been completely eradicated from America.

By JACK LAIT
(Pinch Hitting this week for Walter Winchell)

Memo from Manhattan—

With my son, paratrooper-war correspondent George Lait, I saw a private projection of "The Story of GI Joe," which then had not yet opened in New York. This is a film centered around some of the famous activities of Ernie Pyle. We both have a sentimental interest in Ernie. I knew him when he was an inconspicuous desk drudge on a Washington newspaper, a nice little guy who gave no indication of the immortality he was to attain in our profession. But George knew him more intimately than he knows his brother. They crossed together in a tiny tub to Lisbon, flew from there to London, shared a little flat during the murderous blitz. They went together to Africa and shared tents, jeeps and foxholes during the adventures of the British defeat and retreat and through the triumphs of the allies from El Alamein to conquest of the desert and the Mediterranean.

They were side by side in Sicily and in Italy. George had caught malaria in the desert and came back here for a spell of rest. After that he went through campaigns in New Guinea, Saipan, through the bitter fighting on Leyte. He made battle jumps with the Eleventh Airborne Division and was about to go on to Luzon when the malaria caught up with him again. Gen. MacArthur ordered him flown back on sick leave. Meanwhile, Ernie Pyle had come home to rest and recuperate at his house in Albuquerque, N. M.

I met George at my Beverly Hills retreat, the day after he landed in San Francisco, and while we were there Ernie visited us. He was now on his way to cover the fighting in the Pacific. By this time, he was the most widely syndicated reporter in the world, the only man in my knowledge who ever had both the top best-sellers on the book market at once, and he could have commanded princely prices to lecture, write for magazines or take any of a score of broadcasting offers. . . . George, who had been through plenty with him, told him he was bound for stuff much worse and more dangerous than he had ever known. George pointed out to him his situation, on top of the world, and literally begged him not to go. But Ernie said the very fact that he had built up so large a following was a mandate and an obligation; he couldn't quit in the middle; he had a hunch he would never come back, but he insisted he should go on.

"The Story of GI Joe" takes him only as far as his turning to the road to Rome. . . . Burgess Meredith, who gives an uncanny personification, studied under George and others who knew Ernie well and acquired his little intimate mannerisms; makes even those who knew Pyle think he looks like him. . . . But, though he is a star and playing a greater one, GI Joe is the hero—collectively—of this brave film. I call it brave because Lester Cowan put two and a half million dollars into it, though he had pledged Ernie not to glorify him, gave his principal character no suggestion of any sort of romance, and contracted to let Ernie throw out any scenes he didn't like. He did discard several, which were quite costly, because they made too much of him and too little of the men he loved and who loved him. . . .

Perhaps it was this spirit and faculty that lifted Ernie Pyle above any other reporter of his generation. He was a self-effacing little fellow, not physically brave, who sweated and shuddered during action, but who not only never ducked it, but went, weary and woe-begone, to seek it. . . . George tells me that during the nightly Nazi raids on London, Pyle would be panic-stricken—yet he was the first one at his typewriter when it stopped. . . . He had a lot of resistance, as many wily little men have. . . . With the kind of stuff he wrote, he could have almost as well worked miles back of the front. But the reporter in him drove him right to where things were thickest.

His widow, Gerry, has pleased all his friends by stepping hard on a professional project to establish a gaudy memorial park in his memory. . . . That's exactly what would have made him wince. . . . Perhaps modesty was his predominant characteristic, and it shows in this film, over a natural temptation for a producer, director and actor to create a hero. . . . To himself, Ernie was no hero. . . . He was bewildered by the praise and prosperity which poured down on efforts which he intended to be simple and humble, as he was to the last, and which I am sure he would want his memory to be.

After many long years at every angle of the business, I am scarcely a star-eyed worshiper of a man simply because he does a newspaper job well. . . . Devoting all my space this week to Ernie Pyle makes the first time I have done that since, 30 years ago this week, I wrote an obituary tribute to Paul Armstrong, who was the exact antithesis of the man I deal with here. . . . That bears out a theory which has long seemed sound to me—a man is judged in the direct ratio of what he accomplishes to what he attempts.

Strategic Withdrawal

By FORREST KLEINMAN
McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

PRIVATE BOSKOWITZCH grinned shyly as the seamy face of Sergeant O'Hara appeared over the shallow emplacement where he lay with his light machine gun. "What the devil d'ya want now?" barked Sergeant O'Hara.

Bosko sighed. The sergeant didn't look happy. Bosko had noticed this before whenever he had dealings with the sergeant. Yet the sergeant was a fine, good man. Wasn't it this same Sergeant O'Hara who had given him the wondrous book of knowledge now resting in his pocket—the book of Webster by means of which he spoke American even as Sergeant O'Hara?

Bosko waved a rock-scarred paw at the skirmish line of gray-green figures advancing across the valley below. "Look, Sarge—Germans! But I no shoot. I wait like you tell." He fondled the grip of the machine gun happily.

"Keep your hands off that gun, ya big ape!" snarled the sergeant. "We ain't here to fight the whole German army. We're just an outpost, see?"

Bosko's grin faded. "I no understand. All the time I am at Camp Roberts the lieutenants he say, 'Kill.' The captains he say, 'Kill.' The general he even write an order. But now when I see Germans I cannot shoot him."

How Bosko ever got into the army had long been a mystery and rich source of profanity to Sergeant O'Hara. He'd recommended a section VIII the first week the big Pole joined his squad, but the company commander had said that anyone who could pronounce a name like Boskowitzch couldn't be a 4-F.

"Look, Bosko," Sergeant O'Hara said with great patience. "Those Krauts don't know we're here, so we ain't gonna tell 'em. And by the time they get here we ain't gonna be. It's what is known as a strategic withdrawal. D'ya understand?"

Bosko stuffed a paw inside his field jacket and brightened as he brought forth a dog-eared dictionary. "Mr. Webster tell me. How you spell this words—strategic withdrawal—Sarge?"

"Ditch that dictionary," roared Sergeant O'Hara, "and try this on your ivory dome. We're going to beat it, scam, vacate. You wait here for ten minutes to cover us in case they start coming up, then pack up your gun. I'll meet you with the rest of the squad in the edge of the woods behind the hill. Now d'ya get it?"

Sergeant O'Hara snaked over the ridge. A half-dozen mud-encrusted G.I.s were waiting for him on the reverse slope. "What's up Sarge?" asked Sergeant Murphy, his five-by-five assistant squad leader.

"They're getting ready to serve liverwurst mit sauerkraut on the other side," said Sergeant O'Hara briefly. "But we ain't leaving any."

"What about Bosko?"

"He's to cover us till we get to the woods. He'll meet us there."

They had been waiting in the woods about twenty minutes when the shooting began. Sergeant O'Hara sat on a log and listened to the crack of mausers and the rrrrip-rrrip of machine pistols punctuated by the tat-tat-tat of a light machine gun. "Ya got to admit that eight-ball don't need a dictionary to make a machine gun talk pretty."

"Yeah," said Sergeant Murphy.

"Too bad he hasn't got a chance."

Sergeant O'Hara squirmed. "Well, he asked for it. He had plenty of time to pull out. And if it had to be anyone, it might as well be him. He's been nothing but a headache ever since we got him. We couldn't help him now even if we tried."

"Yeah."

"Then what in thunder are we waiting for?" roared Sergeant O'Hara.

When a famous war correspondent visited the field hospital a few days later, he paused at the cot of Sergeant O'Hara. "Nice work, Sergeant. I hear that you and your friend are in for the D.S.C. for holding up the Krauts long enough so we could get some artillery on them when they tried that attack on our flank the other day."

"Don't call that big ape no friend of mine," growled Sergeant O'Hara, waving his cast at the bulk that protruded from both ends of an adjacent cot. "If it hadn't been for him, I'd be safe and sound in my foxhole right now. And if they want to do something nice for me, mister, they can keep the hardware and just send this eight-ball back home."

"Here I am with one squad sitting on this hill when the whole darned German army starts coming up the valley. What would any smart soldier do? Naturally I call for a strategic withdrawal. It'd'a worked fine, too, only what does this big ape do? He attacks!"

"Well, there's nothing for me to do then, but go back and save the machine gun which costs the Government a hundred and twenty bucks and is charged to me. And what does he say, as soon as we've got the Krauts under control? 'Sarge, how you spell this words—strategic withdrawal?'"

Private Boskowitzch turned one saucer-blue eye from the dog-eared Webster that rested comfortably on his chest, and with a shy grin said: "Say, Sarge, how you spell this word 'baloney'?"

Higher Than Niagara

Residents of North America are pretty proud of their huge Niagara Falls, but folks in British Guiana have a nice waterfall too—many times as high as our local wonder. Few white men have seen Kaieteur Falls, but the water there falls 741 feet.

SNAPPY FACTS

RUBBER

Rubber production from native plants in Southern Florida is not promising at present, and commercial planting of tropical rubber plants there is not justified, in the opinion of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

A special railroad coach equipped to demonstrate tyre (British spelling) conservation has traveled throughout England.

More than 40,000,000 heavy-duty truck tires have been produced since Pearl Harbor, even though 90% of the sources of supply of natural rubber were lost at that time.

Creating Illusion of High Ceiling in Room

HERE is a fascinating illusion of a high ceiling for a room with slanting walls. The trick is in the way the bed and window curtains are cut and hung, and it is one of dozens which are clearly illustrated in a 32-page booklet called "Make Your Own Curtains." Every detail of making and selecting is explained in this little book; and the types of curtains and draperies can save you many a costly mistake.

In the bedroom shown here, the fabric decorations are carefully harmonized. The man of the house had a hand in putting up the dressing table shelf and in making the blanket chest at the foot of the bed. A pattern for the chest lists all material used, and gives illustrated directions for carpenter work, cushion top and covering.

NOTE—The booklet "Make Your Own Curtains" and the Blanket Chest Pattern 259 are 15 cents each. Send request to:

Bolivia's City of 'Peace' Is Highest in the World

The name of the capital of Bolivia is La Paz, which means "peace." Built on a lofty mountain, nearly 2½ miles above sea level, La Paz is the highest city anywhere in the world.

The country is often referred to as "the Switzerland of South America," not only because of its high mountain cities, but because it is the only nation on the continent that is landlocked.

When Your Back Hurts - And Your Strength and Energy Is Below Par

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood. You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with burning and itching is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countrywide approval than on some less favorably known. Doan's have been tried and tested many years. Are at all drug stores. Get Doan's today.
